ondence of the Richmond Disputch WILLIAMSBURG, VA., Sept. 4, 1883. The scene which greeted the Dispatch correspondent yesterday as he approached the county-seat of Gloucester, and passed beneath the tail trees which shadow the couri-yard, was both encouraging and significant. The citizens of that county had assembled to make a Democratic nomina-tion for the House of Delegates and hear a discussion between the Hon. John Goode with Judge Warner T. Jones in the chair and R. A. Fitzhugh secretary. It having been decaded that the nomination should be made in open mass-meeting, Marius Jones, Esq., placed Mr. J. N. Stubis in nomination, who received such an overwhelming yets that his nomination was immediately and one of the bark was sighted by the Macedonia.

He said that as their nominee he would always be found in the lead. and it only needed their active support to interfy rout Mahoneism and sweep it from the county. His re-marks were greeted with warm applause. After reorganizing on the plan laid down by the State Committee the meeting ad-journed. That Gloucester county will render a good account of itself on election-day may confidently be expected. In the discussion between Goode and Wise it was arranged that Goode should open in speech of an hour and a half, Wise to follow in a speech of equal length, with a re-joinder of half an hour each, Wise closing. lext court-day the order is to be reversed. and the Democratic speaker will have the close. The representative following of both parties were on hand. In Gloveester county the white Mahoneites number somewhere between fifty and a hundred, and with the faithful allies made up the Mahoneite portion of the audience.

HON, JOHN GOODE.

Mr. Goode opened by a search for a platform on which the party advocated by his party. opponent supported its pretensions, but having failed to find anything that bore any resemblance to one, he planted him-self on the Lynchburg platform, and plank by plank sustained the position of the Democratic party. In discussing the schoolsystem clause, after stating that the ques-tion had been forced by the Mahoneites and could not be ignored, he explicitly states its requirements, and told the colored people present that the white people and the Democratic party, who paid nine tenths of the taxes, were willing to support their schools and give them their own trustees and teachers to educate their childrep if they desired it.

WHAT THE WRITES DEMAND.

Then, turning to the whites, he said that the Democrats, having accorded these who he would vote for for President in privileges to the colored race, demanded 1884, and that he would not allow any that they have exclusive control of white

Mr. Goode ably discussed the tariff and placed their records on exhibition and turned them inside out, showing how they got into power by the decoy of the debt question; their outrageous excesses after they got in power, and their direct driffitnic they got in power, and their direct driffitnic they got in power, and their direct driffitnic there were but two existing parties, to one of which he said the Mahonettes must belong, and called on his opponent to standard-bearer, spoke, and his position, and tell the people of Goutester county to their fyces with which of these parties he untended to vote next very. After failing to prove that Goode was not a Demecrat, as was predicted. Wise to what extent polities have entered into went into the discussion of the debt question, and argued that it was not settled, and occupied all the early part of the day; and that only full fruits could be attained by fostering what had already been done. WOULD CANVASS THE STATE FOR ARTHUR. This was his reply: "You may put me down as a Republican, and if Chester A. down as a Republican, and if Chester A. Arthur is nominated next year for the presidency I will stump the State for him from Lee to Accomac." He made the astounding announcement that President Arthur was one of the greatest blessings to the South, and had done more to break down sectional feeling than any President since the war. Wise then asked Goode if he would vote for Ben Butler if that personage should be nominated by the Demo-crats, and got a decided answer in the negative. On the school question Wise said that the colored people showed more sense on the race issues than the whites; that his party did not favor mixed schools, but he thought where the colored people repre-sented any considerable portion of the population they should be represented on the school boards.

Wise, in his conclusion, fully sustained his reputation for witty repartee and facility in dodging a difficult situation.

The discussion was conducted pleasantly throughout. When concluding, Wise, in alluding to Richmond, spoke of the "gall and venom" of that city, and said that he would "rather clasp the tongue of a serpent, the tooth of a tiger, and the claw of a lion than

The share market opened irregular and somewhat lower, Before the first call, bowever, a much farmer tone prevailed and there was a ceneral advance of $161; After 11 A. M. the market weak-ened again and felioff $618; Reading, Luckawanna, Jersey Central, Northwestern, Denver, and Orrgon Transcontinental being the most conspicuous in the downward movement. In the aireronous buying orders made their appearance and many stocks sold up to the best figures of the day; the advance ranged from $10; the latter Louisville and Nashville. Canada Soulsern, Northwest, Missouri Pacific, Unron were also prominent. Coat whree were the feature of the day. Western Union and Louisville and Nashville were strong on ramors that Gould, Sarc, and Dillion would enter the Louisville and Nashville directory, and to statements that the Williams suit, which involved the legality of 15,000,000 of new stock of Western Union, would be withdrawn. Northwest was a prominent feature, rising to 127 on the announcement that the increase in enginings for the fourth week in August was really $165,000 instead of $90,000, as previously reported, inasmuch as the company locluded in its earnings for the fourth week in Is82 some $75,000 which its said, in order to prevent any future complications, the old certificates bed by Williams have been exchanged for new stock. The weakness in coat shares is attributed to manupulation by certain operators who are short of the market, and who endeavored to bring about a general decline by depressing those stares. solute. One Eliropean book-keeper and two natives were the only persons whose lives were saved at Merak, where not a building was left standing. At Taudjong Priok, fifty-eight miles distant, the sea suddenly rose eight feet, and then fell ten feet, causing widespread devastation.

France and China.

London, September 5.—A dispatch to the Standard from Hong Kong states that the reported crossing of the frontier of Tonquin by Chinese troops is as yet unconfirmed. War, however, is considered at Hong Kong as certain to ensue unless the French Government fully recognizes the sovereignty of China in Annam.

Pants, September 5.—The National says there is reason to believe that there will be a French naval demonstration on the Chinese coast in the direction of Canton. Admiral Poyron, Minister of Marine and Colonies, has received a telegram from Saigon saying that according to mandarin accounts 1,200 Annamites were killed and 1,500 wounded during the recent bombardment of the forts on the Hue river.

The Libertie states that besides two transports which will sail with 1,000 men for Tonquin between the 10th and 20th instant, another transport will take a battery of mountain runs and material for 4,000 men who will shortly be sent from the African army.
